A Lost Novel by Jane Austen?

An Analytical Essay by Osric Allen

Published by Robert Temple

The author identifies a rare novel published in 1806 as a probable addition to Jane Austen's juvenilia.

COMMENT

The UNESCO ILAB 'Pop Up Book Fair' day that took place on 23 April was a huge success. Dealers in countries around the world took part and there is an excellent blog which is heavily illustrated. Congratulations to all those who took part.

Last week's edition would have arrived in your mailbox later than usual due, as they say, to circumstances outside our control.

Many readers will know that today there is a General Election being held in the UK. The outcome of which is far from clear. It's hope that whichever political party wins, the book trade thrives.

International: Original drawings depicting iconic Martians from HG Wells' sci-fi masterpiece The War of the Worlds are on sale for £350,000

32 pencil and ink drawings to be sold in Dallas, Texas on 14 May by experts who said there is 'nothing like them'. Drawn by Henrique Alvim Correa and included in 1906 edition of the book after Wells had not time to illustrate them. Read more

International: EL James has earned £75m but lies in fourth place

Her books are frequently found carefully hidden among bookshelves, and when they were made into a film. Going to see it was treated as a clandestine affair. But Fifty Shades of Grey author EL James of London, has no need to hide away after she's rocketed to fourth place in the Sunday Times Rich List of authors. With an estimated wealth of £75million the 52-year-old knocked Jackie Collins down to fifth place. Read more

USA: First-ever copy of Playboy magazine featuring Marilyn Monroe naked set to fetch over $2,700 at auction

After an auction of the first issue of Playboy magazine featuring Marilyn Monroe is set to go under the hammer. A world away from its modern, glossy successor, this copy boasts it is the first 'full color' magazine but only features black, white, grey and a touch of red.

Dead in December 1953, it is the first appearance of the 'Playboy Bunny', decked out in a smoking jacket with a pipe in his mouth. In an introduction to Volume 1, Number 1, it clearly states that Playboy not 'a family magazine'. Read more

UK: The days of unlimited internet access may be numbered.

Web access may soon be rationed as Britain's infrastructure BUTTES under the ever-increasing demand for online content. Industry experts are set to meet with the Royal Society next week to discuss the two biggest problems facing the internet in the UK - its surging power demands and its capacity to carry data. The internet is already consuming at least eight per cent of Britain's power output - and demand is soaring. Professor Andrew Little, an expert in optical communications at Aston University, claims existing cables will reach their capacity limit by the end of this decade - triggering a 'potentially disastrous capacity crunch'. May 19 May Galleries' Maps & Atlases, Natural History & Color Plate Books, 19 May

On Sunday 19 May Swann Galleries will conduct an auction of Maps & Atlases, Natural History & Color Plate Books with works by John James Audubon, rare views, maps and atlases, as well as a number of original watercolours and drawings.

Featured in the run of works to be presented to Audubon are two manuscripts: an 1827 Journal of the Voyage to the River Amazon by Alexander von Humboldt and a copy of Birds of America to which was related Andrew Jackson, and an intentions for his family's set (estimate: $8,000 to $12,000). Another Autograph Manuscript, unsigned, is Audubon's 1826 working draft for his Ornithological Biography entry on the Red-winged Starling. It is being offered with the corresponding plates (both the first octavo and the double elephant folio editions of Birds of America ($15,000 to $25,000).

The top lot is Pieter Goo's De Zee-Atlas / Ofte Water-Werld, an atlas with 41 engraved maps, including 39 double-page maps, a folding map and an additional map of New Jersey, all with original hand-color in outline. Published in Amsterdam in 1672, this important atlas is estimated at $70,000 to $100,000. An earlier De Zee-Atlas by Hendrik Brinkman, Amsterdam, circa 1660, is also in the sale ($60,000 to $90,000). Both represent the highest of Dutch sea cartography and come from separate private collections.

Other important atlases include Johannes de Laet's Nova Orbis seu Descriptiones Indiae Occidentalis Libri XVII, Leiden, 1633, called by Burden "the finest description of the Americas published in the seventeenth century" ($10,000 to $15,000); Louis Reclard's Atlas de la navigation, Venice, 1554, 1715 ($30,000 to $50,000); and P. de Medina's L'arte del navegar, Venice, 1554, the first Italian edition of the first reliable pilot for New World waters, also noteworthy as the first practical treatise on navigation ($8,000 to 12,000).

The auction will begin at 1.00pm on Tuesday, 19 May. The material will be on public exhibition Thursday 14 May and Friday 15 May from 10.00am to 6.00pm, Saturday, 16 May from 10.00am to 6.00pm, Sunday, 17 May from 10.00am to 6.00pm, Tuesday, 19 May from 10.00am to Noon.

An illustrated catalogue with information on bidding by mail or fax is available for $35 from Swann Galleries, 104 East 25th Street, New York, NY 10010, or online at www.swann Galleries.com.
